Description

This workshop presumes that the student has a thorough understanding of project management, including topics such as preparing a statement of work, setting project goals, scheduling, budgeting, managing project risks, and executing a project.

Objectives

This one-day workshop will help you teach participants how to:

- Hone staff management skills
- Choose the project team, or make the best of an assigned team
- Keep a project team on track
- Develop a project communication plan
- Communicate with sponsors and executives

Outline

Choosing the Project Team
This session covers some things to consider when choosing a project team and how to make the best of an assigned team.

Building a Winning Team
In this session, we will discuss why teamwork is so important. We will also look at Tuckman and Jensen's four stage team development model: Forming, Storming, Norming, and Performing.

Team Meetings
Most projects should have a defined timeline for team meetings. First, project managers meet with the individual members of the team. Then, the project manager meets with the team as a whole.

Nine Easy Ways to Reward Your Team
One challenge many project managers face is how to keep the team motivated during the project. We discuss nine ways project managers can keep the team moving and performing at their best.

Developing a Communication Plan
To ensure your project's success, you must include a communications plan as part of your initial project planning.

Communicating with Sponsors and Executives
Your project sponsor and executives are key members of your team. Typically, they provide the authority and the resources to execute your project.

Dealing with Problem Team Members
Have you ever had a team member that kept running to the sponsor with every little problem? Or a member who never had anything positive to say? We'll look at a number of problem team members and identify how to turn their problem characteristics into team strengths.
